

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A content processing system for use in an electronic apparatus includes a unit for acquiring first revocation list information corresponding to a first media type, and a unit for recording the first revocation list information on a recording medium of a second media type. The recorded first revocation list information is used in authentication between the electronic apparatus and the recording medium of the second media type.